

Circletalk

For Parents and Participants

A secure, personal capacity-building tool for people with disabilities, neurodivergent conditions, or complex support needs—and those who care for them.

What is Circletalk?

Circletalk is a secure, user-led app that helps individuals and their trusted supporters organise and share personal information that supports success in:

- ✓ Study
- ✓ Employment
- ✓ Independent living
- ✓ Community life

Who is Circletalk for?

- Young adults (18+) managing their own support
- Parents or carers supporting someone with a disability or neurodivergent condition
- Students with modified education or ILPs
- Job seekers with support needs
- Individuals transitioning to community programs or independence

How does this work?

- Only the user or their carer can update information
- Supporters (e.g., teachers, therapists, employers) can be invited to view only what they need to see for free
- View and update information in real time
- No random access or required medical reports
- Uses name (or preferred identity) and year of birth
- Supporters can be added or removed at any time

Why use Circletalk?

- ✓ Save time & reduce repetition
Stop repeating your story, daily needs, or diagnosis
- ✓ Be understood
Let your circle of support see the real you—your preferences, strengths, and goals.
- ✓ Stay in control
You choose who sees what, when, and for how long.
- ✓ Plan for life transitions
Circletalk grows with you—school, work, housing, or services.
- ✓ Support adult transition
Parents can hand over responsibility meaningfully, while staying in the Circle.
- ✓ Encourage digital safety
Supporters can better understand your online and offline needs—safely.

Where do I start?

This service is available through the NDIS under Low-Cost Assistive Technology, or as a self-funded, fee-for-service option. It comes with a one-off annual fee of $390 AUD. You can unsubscribe and rejoin at any time, making it a flexible option that adapts to your changing life stages.
